The organization will conduct scientific research on age-related macular degeneration (AMD) which is deterioration of the macula, which is the small central area of the retina of the eye that controls visual acuity. The specific nature of this research may vary, but all will fit within our general mission to provide education to the general public on the AMD and the impact it has on individuals.

We seek to advance the science of the nutritional basis of AMD through anthropological and nutritional, population-based, scientific research, particularly involving societies that still consume native, traditional, non-Westernized diets. We will research and provide information on the prevention and treatment of AMD on a daily basis.
